

After the break-up of his band Transit Belle, Joe Penna stopped playing his guitar and instead played lots of video games. This kept him really busy but after saving the princess and getting all the power-ups he could, he got bored. Needing something better to do with his time he went to see the band Boris with his friends Tom and Dave. During the show they got so into the hot Boris tuneage that they lost track of their booze intake. The next day when Joe's head started to clear he thought they might have had a conversation about starting a band, so he called Tom to see if it were true. It was. Joe said "cool man, but we have no drummer" and hung up. Later that day Tom called Joe to tell him that they had a drummer, this guy called Scotty Imp. I think they had t-shirts for sale two weeks later.
